3 REASONS FOR JUDGMENT DELIVERED ON 8 MAY 2019
4
5

6 1. This Ruling concerns a Summons issued by the First Third Party dated 24 January 2019
7 pursuant to GCR Order 18, rule 19 (1) (a), (c) and/or (d) for striking out the claim 8 advanced by the Second Third Party against the First Third Party at paragraph 22 of the 9 Counterclaim filed on 28 July 2017, and duplicated at paragraph 22 of the Counterclaim 10 filed 1 September 2017, claiming damages inter alia from the First Third Party on 11 account of the alleged loss of and damage to its boom lift sustained on 16 May 2009. The 12 grounds are that the said pleading discloses no reasonable cause of action, is frivolous or 13 vexatious, and/or is an abuse of process of the Court, being statute barred as pleaded by 14 the First Third Party under the Limitation Law (1996 Revision).

15
16 2. On 8 May 2019 the Court accepted that the Application to strike out was properly 17 established and it found in favour of the First Third Party and directed accordingly.
18

19 The Limitation Law ( 1996 Revision)
20

21 3. Section 41 of the Limitation Law (1996 Revision) states:

22 41. (1) For the purposes of this Law, any new claim made in the course of an 23 action shall be deemed to be a separate action and to have been commenced in the case 24 of-

25 a) a new claim made in or by way of third party proceedings, on the date 26 which those proceedings were commenced; and 27 b) any other new claim, on the same date as the original action.

1 (2) In this section-

2 "new claim" means a claim by way of set-off or counterclaim, and a claim involving the 3 addition or substitution of either a new cause of action or of a new party; and 4 "third party proceedings" means proceedings brought in the course of an action by any 5 party to the action against a person not previously a party, other than proceedings 6 brought by joining any such person as defendant to any claim already made in the 7 original action by the party bringing the proceedings.

8 (3) Except as provided by section 39 or by rules of court, a court shall not allow a 9 new claim within paragraph (b) of subsection (1), other than an original set-off or 10 original counterclaim, to be made in the course of an action after the expiry of any time 11 limit under this Law which would affect a new action to enforce that claim. For the 12 purposes of this subsection, a claim is an original set-off or an original counterclaim if it 13 is a claim made by way of set-off or counterclaim by a party who had not previously 14 made any claim in the action.

15 (4) Rules of court may provide for allowing a new claim to which subsection (3) 16 applies to be made as therein mentioned, but only if the conditions specified in subsection 17 (5) are satisfied, and subject to any further restrictions the rules may impose.

18 (5) The conditions referred to in subsection (4) are in the case of a claim 19 involving-

20 a) a new cause of action, if the new cause of action arises out of the 21 same facts or substantially the same facts as are already in issue 22 on any claim previously made in the original action; and 23 (b) a new party, if the addition or substitution of the new party is 24 necessary for the determination of the original action.

25 (6) The addition or substitution of a new party shall not be regarded for the 26 purposes of paragraph (b) of subsection (5) as necessary for the 27 determination of the original action unless either-

1 (a) the new party is substituted for a party whose name was given in 2 any claim made in the original action in mistake for the new 3 party's name; or

4 (b) any claim already made in the original action cannot be 5 maintained by or against an existing party unless the new party is 6 joined or substituted as plaintiff or defendant in that action.

7 (7) Subject to subsection (4), rules of court may provide for allowing a party to 8 any action to claim relief in a new capacity in respect of a new cause of 9 action, notwithstanding that he had no title to make that claim at the date of 10 the commencement of the action. This subsection shall not be taken as 11 prejudicing the power of rules of court to provide for allowing a party to 12 claim relief in a new capacity without adding or substituting a new cause of 13 action.

14 (8) Subsections (3), (4), (5), (6) and (7) apply in relation to a new claim made in 15 the course of third party proceedings as if those proceedings were the original 16 action, and subject to such other modifications as may be prescribed by rules 17 of court in any case or class of case.

18 (9) In this section-

19 "rules of court" means rules made under section 19(3) of the Grand Court Law 20 (1995 Revision) or section 53 (1) of the Summary Jurisdiction Law (1995 21 Revision)."

22 4. Section 12 of the Limitation Law, dealing expressly with contribution as distinct from 23 counterclaim, states:

24 "12. (1) Where, under section 6 of the Torts (Reform) Law (1996 Revision), a person is 25 entitled to a right to recover contribution in respect of any damage from any other 26 person, no action to recover contribution by virtue of that right shall be brought after the 27 expiration of two years from the date on which that right accrued."

1 5. These provisions are by common agreement extremely difficult to construe, and for that 2 reason as the Court stated in its original Judgment it is necessary to adopt and apply a 3 broadly thematic approach to their interpretation.

4 6. The overarching principle is that time limits should apply to a wide range of legal 5 proceedings, as distinct from them not applying. It is with this clear perspective firmly in 6 mind that the Court has approached the issue raised in these proceedings.

7 8 The Background

9
10 7. A broadly helpful outline of the background is provided at paragraphs 5-8 of the First 11 Third Party's Submissions dated 4 May 2019:

12 "5. In summary, Dolphin and CES have been brought into this action by the 13 Defendants as third parties. For present purposes both Mr DaCosta and 14 Paint Pros will be referred to as "the Defendant". There is an issue (as 15 between the Plaintiff and Mr DaCosta and Paint Pros and with which the 16 Court is not presently concerned) as to whether one or the other was the 17 employer of the Plaintiff. Each of them (Mr DaCosta and Paint Pros) has 18 accordingly issued third party notices against Dolphin and CES in 19 identical form. For present purposes it does not matter which was the 20 employer and accordingly reference here will be made only to Mr 21 DaCosta and Paint Pros collectively as "the Defendant".

22 6. The Plaintiff claims against the Defendant damages for personal injury
23 suffered as long ago as May 16, 2009 ("the main action"). On that date 24 the Plaintiff and one other employee were operating a Terex TB 110 25 telescopic boom lift ("the boom lift") owned and supplied by CES but 26 through Dolphin in order to gain access to the upper stories of a building 27 where they were working. The boom lift toppled over and the Plaintiff was

1                    injured. The Plaintiff issued proceedings against the Defendant just within 2                    the limitation period on 26 April 2012 [2]. The Defendant served a 3                    Defence dated 25 May 2012 [3] but took no steps in relation to Dolphin or 4                    CES for almost five years, when a third party notice was issued on 16 5                    February 2017 [5] and served on Dolphin and CES almost 8 years after 6                    the accident.

7                    7.                Dolphin issued and served a contribution and indemnity notice on CES 8                    dated July 21, 2017 [8] and CES issued and served a contribution and 9                    indemnity notice on Dolphin dated July 27 [9]. By Grand Court Rule 10                   Order 16 r.9 (1) a contribution and indemnity notice given by a third party 11                   is effectively to be treated as a third party notice, with the giver of the 12                   notice treated as a defendant. By Grand Court Rules Order 16 r. 3 (4) on 13                   service of third party notice, the Rules apply as though

14                   (a) the third party notice were a writ and the proceeding begun thereby an 15                   action; and 16                   (b) the defendant issuing the third party notice were a plaintiff and the 17                   person against whom it is issued a defendant in that action.

18                   8.                By s. 41(1) of the Limitation Law (1996 Revision) (“the Law”) (5), a claim 19                   made in third party proceedings is deemed to be a separate action and to 20                   have been commenced on the date on which those proceedings were 21                   commenced. On this basis, the Defendant’s third party notice and also 22                   Dolphin’s and CED’ contribution and indemnity notices would be deemed 23                   to have commenced on the days that they were issued – i.e. respectively in 24                   February 2017 (the Defendant) and July 2017 (Dolphin and CES) – and 25                   would be wildly out of time, whether the indemnity and contribution 26                   claims contained therein were based in contract or in tort.”

27                   8.                The Second Third Party, on the other hand, claims that its counterclaim is preserved by 28                   section 12, which it argues upon its face applies to third party proceeding and provides

1 that the limitation period in the case of contribution and indemnity (widely interpreted) in 2 such proceedings does not expire until two years after a judgment in the main action.

3 9. The Court, however, has pointed out that steps are covered by the collective provisions 4 which are not merely steps in third party proceedings, but rather more widely steps “in 5 the course of third party proceedings”, and therefore not included within the “relation 6 back” principle itself available per se to a defendant for contribution.

7 10. In this context, the Court carefully notes the following statement of the Second Third 8 Party in its Skeleton Argument dated 24 April 2019 at paragraph 9:

9 “9. CES agree that S.41 makes a distinction between “claims in or by way of third 10 party proceedings” and “other new claims/original counterclaims”. The former 11 are deemed to be commenced when the applicable third party notice was served 12 and the latter on the date the original action was commenced (the relation back 13 rule). CES accept that if its counterclaim is a “claim in or by way of third party 14 proceedings” then it will be time barred. If it is a “new claim” on other hand, and 15 arises out of the same facts of the original action (making it an “original 16 counterclaim”) then it will be in time. This is because S. 41 will deem it to have 17 been commenced at the date of the original action in 2012. This would place it in 18 time.”

19 11. This assertion amply demonstrates the fundamental misconception that the time-barring 20 of new claims does not extend to those brought in the course of third party proceedings as 21 distinct from new claims brought simply in or by way of third party proceedings 22 themselves. It is the case that here is a new claim which is out of time and one that is also 23 outside the narrow “relation back” principle. The claim here is brought not in third party 24 proceedings themselves but in the course of third party proceedings. That is a material 25 and indeed crucial distinction which extends the scope of the time-barring rather than 26 providing an exemption from it.

1 The Findings of the Court

2
3 12. The Court has accepted that paragraphs 7, 8 and 11 of Mr Keeble’s Response to the Second 4 Third Party’s Submissions, dated 7 May 2019, represent a good statement of the law.

5 13. Paragraphs 7, 8 and 9 proceed as follows:

6 “7. The question the Court had to answer in Khan v Al Rawas was precisely the question 7 posed in this case, set out by the Court of Appeal at paragraph 3 of the judgment as 8 follows:

9 “3. The question of construction that arises is this. C brings a claim against D, which 10 is in time. D (not having previously made any claim in the proceedings) wants to 11 counterclaim against C, but a fresh action to advance that counterclaim would be out of 12 time at the time when C’s claim is brought. Does section 35 of the Limitation Act, in 13 particular subsections (1) and (3) of section 35, nevertheless allow D to bring the 14 counterclaim, as a matter of right?”

15 The trial judge Elisabeth Laing J. and a unanimous Court of Appeal held that D was not 16 allowed in the circumstances to bring a counterclaim as a matter of right. Precisely the 17 same applies here.

18 8. The facts in Khan v Al Rawas were as follows: Khan was a firm of solicitors who 19 acted for Mrs Al-Rawas and another in proceedings against a company called 20 Pegasus. In July 2006 Mrs Al-Rawas obtained ex parte injunctions were 21 discharged and the court made orders for damages and costs against Mrs Al-
22 Rawas. The retainer continued and on August 1, 2013 Khan commenced 23 proceedings claiming disbursements of £354,151 and interest against Mrs Al-
24 Rawas. The claim was made within six years of the commencement of Khan’s 25 cause of action. On April 4, 2014 Mrs Al-Rawas served a defence and 26 counterclaim asserting that Khan had been guilty of professional negligence in 27 relation to the claim against Pegasus. It is to be noted that at the time of issue of

1 Khan's claim (August 1, 2013) Mrs Al-Rawas claim in professional negligence
2 would already have been statute barred. The professional negligence of which she 3 complained occurred prior to September 2006 so that her claim would have been 4 statute bared by September 2012. Nevertheless her counsel asserted that s.35 of 5 the English Limitation Act (s.41 of the Limitation Law) entitled her to bring the 6 counterclaim even though, if brought as an original action, it would have been 7 out of time.

8 9. The Court of Appeal held for reasons which are set out fully in Dolphin's Outline 9 Submissions that this was wrong. Section 35 enabled the counterclaim to be 10 treated as though it were issued on the date of the claim against Mrs Al-Rawas 11 i.e. August 1, 2013. However, since at this date her counterclaim was already 12 statute barred, s.35 was of no assistance. Similarly, s. 41 would allow CES
13 present claim to be backdated to February 16, 2017, the date of the Defendant's 14 third party notices. That does not avail CES; at that date CES against Dolphin 15 would already have been statute barred for over two years.

16 14. Paragraph 11 then states:

17 "11. CES apparently also relies on GCR Order 16 r. 1 (3) which states:

18 "Where a third party notice is served on the person against whom it is issued, he 19 shall as from the time of service be a party to the action (in this Order referred to as a 20 third party) with the same rights in respect of his defence against any claim made against 21 him in the notice and otherwise as if he had been duly sued in the ordinary way by the 22 defendant by whom the notice is issued".

23 CES' rights in respect of its defence are such rights as it would have had if the Defendant 24 had sued it on February 16, 2017. At this stage its claim against Dolphin was clearly 25 statute barred."

1 Conclusion

2

3 15. In specific relation to a third party counterclaim there is no case directly on point.
4 Nevertheless whether one examines the prescriptive rights claimed and their clear 5 thematic limitations, the authority of Khan v. Al – Rawas [2017] 1 WLR 2301 (CA) is 6 helpful and illuminating. The Court in particular makes reference to what is set out in 7 paragraphs 15, 31, 38, 39 and 41.

8 16. The Court especially emphasises paragraph 38, where Sharp LJ states:

9 “As Ms Mulcahy submits, it is difficult to discern any intelligible legislative policy behind 10 a provision which would enable a counterclaim of any age, and no matter how stale, to 11 be pursued, merely because, as a matter of happenstance, the party raising such a new 12 claim, had been sued. The judge pointed to the absence of clear words mandating such a 13 surprising result; and she characterised such an intention as “capricious” and productive 14 of legal uncertainty.”

15 17. Sharp LJ also refers at paragraph 39 to the careful and nuanced approach to be found in 16 the English Limitation Act, and for the need to protect a party who might otherwise have a 17 course of action hanging over him like a sword of Damocles for an indefinite period. In 18 summary, this Court considers that in this area of law any exceptions should be narrow 19 ones rather than wide ones.

20 18. I support such an approach. Despite having listened carefully if perhaps challengingly to 21 what Mr Huskinsson says, I am unable to perceive any legal authority that supports his 22 position. I have found in favour of Mr Keeble’s client in light of the arguments which he 23 put forward.

19. The Court would only add that notwithstanding the apparent difficulty of the language in section 41, it is important to approach the construction of the section with an appropriate logic, bearing fully in mind the mischiefs which the Limitation Law is comprehensively designed and intended to prevent.
