34 JUDGMENT

35 Background

36 1. Mr. McLaughlin ("the Plaintiff") has been employed with the Cayman Islands 37 Fire Service ("CIFS") since 1979. He rose through the ranks and was promoted to

1 the post of Deputy Chief Fire Officer. On 25 March 2013 he was appointed as 2 Acting Chief Fire Officer.

4 2. On 3 July 2013 the Cayman Islands Government announced a voluntary 5 separation policy for qualified members of the Civil Service. On 31 October 2013 6 the Plaintiff submitted an application pursuant to the policy. The application was 7 refused by the Voluntary Separation Committee as the Plaintiff did not fulfil the 8 requisite criteria.

10 3. The Plaintiff has been on health leave since 14 February 2014 and has been 11 providing medical certificates in the interim when requested to do so by the 12 employer. It appears that this health leave was caused by injuries received in the 13 line of duty.

15 4. On 24 February 2014 the Plaintiff submitted an application for the advertised post 16 of Chief Fire Officer.

18 5. On 25 February 2014 the Plaintiff was informed in writing by the First Defendant 19 that, following a review conducted by the Chief Fire and Rescue Adviser in the 20 United Kingdom (“the Adviser”), the CIFS was to be restructured. He was 21 informed that the post of Deputy Chief Fire Officer would be removed as a part of the restructuring of the management, whilst the post of Chief Fire officer would remain.

4 6. The First Defendant went on to say in the letter that, having considered the 5 Plaintiff's wish to voluntary separate from the public service and the 6 recommendations from the Adviser for restructuring, he was exercising his 7 powers pursuant to section 44(6) of the Public Service Management Law (2011 8 Revision) ("the Law"). That section enables the Chief Officer to retire a staff 9 member in order to improve the efficiency of the civil service entity, but in 10 accordance with the procedures established in personal regulations for retiring 11 civil servants. The First Defendant stated in the letter that pursuant to section 12 44(1)(b) of the Personnel Regulations (2011 Revision) ("the Regulations") that he 13 was giving the Plaintiff written notice of his intention to retire him from the CIFS 14 to improve the organisation. Section 44(1)(b) of the Regulations provides that 15 before determining whether to require a staff member to retire under section 44(6) 16 of the Law the staff member must be advised of the intention to require his 17 retirement to improve the organisation, and to provide him with an opportunity to 18 explain his position. Section 44(1)(c) of the Regulations requires the appointing 19 officer to then re-evaluate the effect of retiring the staff member in light of the 20 explanation provided by the staff member, and thereafter notify the staff member 21 of the results of the re-evaluation. Section 44(2) of the Regulations provides that 22 after the section 44(1) procedure has been completed, if the appointing officer is still of the view that retiring the staff member will improve the efficiency of the civil service entity, then he may retire the staff member pursuant to section 44(6) of the Law and when doing so must comply with Section 44(3) of the Regulations. Accordingly, in the letter the First Defendant provided details of the benefits the Plaintiff would receive and properly invited a response pursuant to section 44(1)(b) of the Regulations by 3 March 2014.

7. On 3 March 2014 the Plaintiff replied in writing to the First Defendant. The Plaintiff indicated that the offer was being “seriously contemplated”, but explained that he wished to have further discussions and time before reaching a final decision. In light of the content of the letter the First Defendant extended the response period to 10 March 2014.

8. On 9 March 2014 the Plaintiff again wrote to the First Defendant. In the letter he indicated that he was prepared to retire early from the CIFS, but he sought to address a number of issues. He highlighted that his application for voluntary separation in 2013 should not be viewed as a relevant consideration in what amounted to an “involuntary termination of service by the employer.” The Plaintiff indicated that he did not agree with the rationale for his early retirement based on the Adviser’s recommendations and the First Defendant’s decision to restructure the organisation.

1 9. In the 9 March letter the Plaintiff also complained that he was being denied the 2 opportunity to be interviewed and considered for the post of Chief Fire Officer 3 saying that the circumstances seemed to be “unfair, biased and unreasonable,” 4 especially as he had been acting in that post for the past year. However, the First 5 Defendant contends that this is not so. The Plaintiff was informed on 18 June 6 2014 that he had been shortlisted for the post. He was, along with all the other 7 applicants for the post, asked to submit a five-year strategic plan in support of his 8 application within a stipulated time. The First Defendant contends that this has 9 still not been done by the Plaintiff despite him and his attorneys requesting 10 several extensions of time for him to do so. In fact, it is contended that he was 11 given a more favourable opportunity to apply, for by giving these extensions he 12 had been afforded more time than the other applicants to prepare.

13
14 10. In the 9 March 2014 letter the Plaintiff indicated his upset at being personally 15 served with the 25 February letter by the First Defendant and by the letter then 16 being read out to him in full. However, it appears that the Plaintiff has failed to 17 recognise that section 44(1)(b) of the Regulations requires the staff member to be 18 advised both orally and in writing. He also complains that notification should 19 have waited until after his return to work, although it appears that he is still off 20 work at this time.

1 11. In the 9 March 2014 letter, the Plaintiff went on to decline the offer made by the 2 First Defendant. He highlighted that this was not a voluntary separation but it was 3 now an involuntary termination of service. He made a counter-offer in relation to 4 benefits that would be acceptable for him if he were to retire. I pay no regard to 5 the detail of the counter offer because the 9 March 2014 letter is headed “without 6 prejudice.”

8 12. On 20 March 2014, the First Defendant replied to the Plaintiff. He stated (as 9 required by section 44(1)(c) of the Regulations) that he had given full 10 consideration to the representations made in the 9 March letter and had re-11 evaluated the effect of retiring the Plaintiff to improve the efficiency of the CIFS.
12 As permitted under section 44(2) of the Regulations, the First Defendant 13 reiterated that he was of the view that retiring him would improve the efficiency 14 of the CIFS. However it is evident that a decision was not finalised or moved on 15 to the section 44(3) stages because the First Defendant then made an increased 16 “final offer” of settlement terms. The First Defendant requested confirmation of 17 acceptance of this offer by or on 24 March 2014.

18

19 13. On 21 March 2014 a letter was sent by the First Defendant to the Plaintiff 20 confirming that when the Ministry of Home Affairs assumed responsibilities for 21 the Fire Department on 1 July 2013 it continued the Plaintiff’s appointment as 22 Acting Chief Fire Officer from 12 July 2013 until further notice. It also noted that,

1 as he was on sick leave from 14 February until 31 March 2014, the acting 2 appointment would cease during that time and that the Deputy Chief Fire Officer 3 was appointed as the Acting Chief Fire Officer.

5 14. On 24 March 2014 the Plaintiff wrote to the First Defendant seeking an extension 6 of time to reply to the offer of settlement contained in the 20 March 2014 letter.
7 By letter dated 25 March 2014 the Acting Chief Officer of the Ministry acceded 8 to that request granting an extension until 9 April 2014.

10 15. On 9 April 2014 the Plaintiff wrote to the First Defendant, declining the offer of 11 settlement, and indicating that his legal advisers had told him that what he viewed 12 as being a decision to terminate his services in the letter of 20 March 2014 was 13 “illegal, ultra vires, irrational, procedurally irregular and in breach of the rules 14 of natural justice.” He added that there was no credible evidence or rational basis 15 in support of the decision to abolish any of the two posts of Deputy Chief Fire 16 Officer and that the exercise of statutory power to abolish the post which he holds 17 was “irrational and void.”

18

19 16. On 29 April 2014 a further without prejudice letter was sent by the Acting Chief 20 Officer of the Ministry to the Plaintiff. It indicated that full consideration had 21 been given to the above-mentioned letters sent by the Plaintiff and that a “final 22 offer” of settlement was made. I note that the term final offer had also been used by the First Defendant in his letter of 20 March 2015, and despite this, there were ongoing negotiations and an increased revised offer. It appears that final does not mean final in these negotiations. Again, I pay no regard to the substance of the offer, as it appeared in a without prejudice letter. The letter required confirmation of acceptance of the latest “final offer” on or before 23 May 2014.

17. On 22 May 2014 the Plaintiff lodged an appeal dated 21 May 2014 with the Civil Service Appeals Commission (“the Commission”) against the decision of the Chief Officer, Ministry of Home Affairs which he contends had been taken on 29 April 2014. I note with interest that the Notice of Appeal was filed on the same day that Plaintiff wrote to the First Defendant stating that the latest final offer communicated in the 29 April 2014 letter was unacceptable and that remedies pursuant to the Law would now be sought. It was clear that the parties were in negotiations which had already included the First Defendant increasing “final offers” of settlement. With hindsight it would have been wise for the Plaintiff to have communicated his non-acceptance of the offer, his intention to appeal to the Commission and allow a short but reasonable period of time for a reply from the First Defendant before lodging the appeal. This would have enabled the First Defendant to have either made a further offer or, if both parties agreed they had met an impasse, to finalise and formalise a decision to retire the Plaintiff by following the section 44(3) of the Regulations procedure. The First Defendant quite rightly had not initiated the Section 44(3) procedures as the parties were still

1 negotiating and it would have been wrong for him to have done so whilst they 2 were doing so. By lodging the appeal in this hasty manner the First Defendant 3 was not afforded the opportunity to consider whether he wished to move on to 4 the final part of the process, namely the section 43(3) procedure.

6 18. On 28 May 2014 the Plaintiff lodged an Amended Notice of Appeal to the 7 Commission. The Amended Notice of Appeal contained the grounds of the appeal 8 and asked the Commission to set aside the decision of the Chief Officer and 9 award monetary compensation. It is of course right that this alternative remedy 10 should be exhausted before any application for judicial review is made.

11

12 19. On 6 June 2014 the Acting Chairman of the Commission wrote to the Plaintiff's 13 attorney and to the First Defendant. The letter queried whether a relevant decision 14 was taken and, if it was, whether it was on 29 April 2014 or on 25 February 2014.
15 This was important because, pursuant to section 54(1) of the Law, any appeal to 16 the Commission has to be brought within 30 days of the relevant decision. The 17 Acting Chairman required the parties to, within 10 days, submit written 18 submissions concerning the date of the decision that was being appealed, whether 19 the Plaintiff is employed by the Ministry and, if his retirement has taken place, the 20 date each party state as being the effective retirement date.

1 20. The Plaintiff's attorneys wrote to the Acting Chairman of the Commission on 10
2 June 2014, making it clear that the decision could not be said to have been made 3 in February as the letter was ambiguous. They forcefully submitted that the final 4 decision was only contained in the 29 April 2014 letter.

6 21 On 17 June 2014 the Attorney General's Chambers wrote to the Acting Chairman 7 of the Commission on behalf of the First Defendant. They understandably stated 8 that the lodging of the appeal was premature as no final decision had yet been 9 made because the parties were in the process of conducting negotiations with a 10 view to agreeing a settlement package. They made it clear that the 25 February 11 letter referred to an intention to retire and that the Plaintiff remained unretired 12 from the civil service and was currently employed on full pay as Acting Chief 13 Fire Officer despite being on sick leave on 14 February 2014. The letter noted that 14 a sick certificate had been provided by the Plaintiff to them on 5 June 2014 which 15 covered the period 2 June 2014 to 4 July 2014. They also stated that the letter 16 dated 29 April 2014 was a without prejudice letter containing an offer of 17 settlement and it did not state or contain a formal decision by the Acting Chief 18 Officer to retire the Plaintiff and therefore could not be the subject of an appeal.
19 They commented that it was highly inappropriate for without prejudice letters to 20 form the basis of an appeal, especially as they were drafted in the context of 21 genuine settlement negotiations. The Acting Commissioner was informed that the 1 negotiations were ongoing and it was inappropriate to use oral offers of 2 compromise in proceedings before statutory tribunal.

4 22. I again note that the First Defendant has not undertaken the procedure set out in 5 section 44(3) of the Regulations<sup>1</sup>, which requires the appointing officer at the 6 earliest opportunity upon deciding to retire staff member to notify the staff 7 member that he is being retired to improve the organisation under the terms of his 8 employment agreement and provide the staff member with three months' notice 9 of the retirement. I note that up until 29 April 2014 the Plaintiff had carefully 10 followed the procedure set out in section 44(1) of the Regulations. The fact that 11 the First Defendant had not reached the stage of the section 44(3) procedure as 12 negotiations were still ongoing and the appeal was lodged, without warning and 13 without affording the First Defendant an opportunity to reply, on the same day 14 that the then current offer was refused by the Plaintiff is a clear indicator that a 15 final formal decision had not been taken or communicated.
16

17 23. On 19 June 2014 the Plaintiff's attorney again wrote to the Acting Chairman of 18 the Commission. He confirmed that both parties agreed that the letter of 25 19 February 2014 did not contain a final decision. He reiterated his view that the 20 letter of 29 April 2014 did communicate a final decision as it commented that full 21 consideration had been given to the Plaintiff's representations and that the terms

1 were a final offer. It was submitted that the fact that he was still employed by the 2 civil service was irrelevant, since it was the decision and not the fact of retirement 3 (which may only come into effect at a future date) which is the subject of appeal.
4 However, when I consider the submissions I note that when giving the decision to 5 retire staff member section 44(3) of the Regulations requires three months' notice 6 of the retirement to be given and therefore if a final decision to retire had been 7 made and communicated to the Plaintiff on 29 April 2014, one would reasonably 8 expect the retirement to have come into effect on or around 29 July 2014. In fact 9 there is no evidence of the existence of any retirement date, which would be 10 communicated at the time of the final and formal decision to retire the staff 11 member.

13 24. By letter dated 15 July 2014 the Acting Chairman of the Commission 14 communicated to the Plaintiff that after considering the submissions at its meeting 15 on 1 July 2014, the Commission Members had unanimously concluded that there 16 had not been "a final determination of the question whether the appellant is to be 17 retired in the interest of the public service" and decided that the Appellant's 18 appeal was premature. The Commission rightly refused to accept the appeal.

19
20 25. On 23 July 2014 the Plaintiff filed and issued an Ex Parte Application for Leave 21 to Apply for Judicial Review ("the Application") of (i) "the decision" of the First 22 Defendant made on 29 April 2014 to retire the Plaintiff from his post of Deputy

1 Chief Fire Officer; and (ii) the decision of the Commission made on 1 July 2014 2 not to proceed with the hearing and determine the Plaintiff's appeal against "the 3 decision" of the First Defendant.

5 26. The Plaintiff in his application sought:

6 (i). a declaration that the First Defendant made a final decision on 29 April 7 2014 to retire the Plaintiff on the purported ground that it was in order to 8 improve the efficiency of the CIFS and in so doing acted contrary to 9 section 44(6) and 44(8) of the Law, Regulation 44 of the Regulations and 10 the Constitution;

11 (ii). an order for Certiorari to quash the decision of the First Defendant made 12 on 29 April 2014 to retire the Plaintiff from his position of Deputy Chief 13 Fire Officer and to deny him compensation and/or damages payable to 14 him in the circumstances;

15 (iii). an order for Certiorari to quash the decision of the Second Defendant 16 made on 1 July 2014 not to hear and determine the appeal of the Plaintiff 17 against the decision of the First Defendant to retire the Plaintiff; and 18 (iv). an order to set aside the said decision and/or grant to the Plaintiff 19 monetary relief against the Crown for the unlawful and unconstitutional 20 action taken against him and that such damages should reflect loss of 21 income, loss of prospects of promotion, contravention of the Plaintiff's

1 rights, disadvantage in the employment market, smear of the Plaintiff's 2 reputation, loss of opportunities and emotional distress.

4 27. The Application came before me on 23 September 2014. Upon reading the papers
5 prior to the hearing it was evident to me that there were issues upon which I 6 would likely be assisted in my task by hearing from the Defendants. This view 7 about inviting the Defendants to attend the leave hearing and the relevant case law 8 was notified to the Plaintiff's attorneys about five days prior to the hearing. At the 9 same time, their attention was drawn to the Pre-Action Protocol for Judicial 10 Review 4/2013.
11

12 28. At the hearing it was evident that the Defendants had become aware of the 13 proceedings, not by the Plaintiff notifying them of the same, but by seeing the 14 case appearing in the published Court List and thereafter obtaining a copy of the 15 application from the Court's Office. The Defendants did not attend the hearing 16 but the Second Defendant's attorneys indicated to the Plaintiff that they wished to 17 be heard at the leave hearing.
18

19 29. Although Dr. Barnett forcefully submitted that this was not one of those cases 20 where a defendant may be invited to attend because an interim remedy or order 21 was being sought, it was evident to me that there was an issue as to whether a 22 decision existed which was amenable for judicial review. There was also a

1 possible issue as to delay. It was clear to me, and remains so, that there was no 2 issue as to the Plaintiff having a sufficient interest.

4 30. Having regard to the cases of: (i) IRC v National Federation of Self -Employed
5 and Small Businesses [1981] A.C. 617; (ii) R v Secretary of State for the Home
6 department Ex Parte Rukshanda Begum Ex Parte Angur Begum and Others
7 [1990] Imm A.R. 1; and (iii) Reg v Camden London Borough Council ex parte 8 Marten [1997] 1 W.L.R. 359, I felt it appropriate to adjourn the application to 9 enable the Defendants to attend the leave hearing. I felt that I required 10 clarification about the Defendants' position(s) regarding the application and felt 11 that they would likely possess factual information that could have a material 12 influence on whether or not I granted leave. Before the end of the ex parte hearing 13 I reiterated the purpose of the Pre-Action Protocol for Judicial Review and 14 expressed a concern that it had not been followed in this case. For the avoidance 15 of future doubt, I reiterate the importance to parties in all judicial review 16 applications of fully complying with the Pre-Action Protocol.

18 31. Following on from the hearing the Plaintiff's attorneys submitted a draft order for 19 my approval. Paragraph 3 of the order specifically required service of the 20 application and affidavit in support upon the Defendants. A copy of the transcript 21 of my written ruling had been provided to the Plaintiff's attorneys at Court on 23 22 September 2014. Although the order prepared by the Plaintiff's attorneys did not

1 include a provision requiring them to disclose their written submissions or the 2 transcript of my judgment, I am of the view that they should also have supplied 3 those, as they had a duty to give full and frank disclosure about what had occurred 4 at the adjourned ex parte hearing. They were wrong to view paragraph 3 of the 5 order as the Court authorising them to refuse to provide their submissions despite 6 a request for them in writing from the attorney for the Second Defendant. I 7 expressed this view to the parties in writing prior to the hearing. Although I 8 accept this was not a case in which an ex parte order had been made against the 9 Defendants, I am still of the view that best practice determines that a copy of the 10 ex tempore judgment should have been provided. I should add for future cases 11 that may come before me, where the Court makes an ex parte order, an applicant 12 is obligated to provide the evidential and other persuasive materials used to obtain 13 the order to the respondent as soon as practicable. Additionally, a proper and full 14 court attendance note of what was put before the Court and said to the Court 15 should also be served.<sup>2</sup>

17 32. At the on notice hearing the parties agreed that the Attorney General, who had 18 been named as the Third Defendant, should be removed as a party to these 19 proceedings. I made that order.

1 Submissions Made and the Law

2 33. At this stage my function is not to determine issues that are properly raised by the 3 affidavits before me. I bear in mind that leave should be granted if on the material 4 available the Court thinks, without going into the matter in depth, that there is an 5 arguable case for granting relief. However, this hearing is still an integral part of 6 the process, often wrongly viewed by some as being a ‘rubber stamping exercise.’
7 It is an important judicial filter introduced right at the outset of what can 8 thereafter turn out to be costly and time consuming proceedings. The purpose of 9 the requirement for leave is to eliminate at an early stage any applications which 10 are frivolous or hopeless and to ensure that the matter only proceeds to a 11 substantive hearing if there is a case fit for consideration.

13 34. The First Defendant’s case is straightforward; it contends that no decision has 14 been made. It contends that the content in the series of letters written in ongoing 15 without prejudice negotiations were intended to see if a settlement could be 16 reached and were not intended to formalise a final decision. It is contended that a 17 final decision has still not been made or communicated, as negotiations are still 18 ongoing and that is the reason why, at the time of this hearing in December 2104, 19 7 ½ months after 29 April 2014, the Plaintiff is still employed. I note that it is 20 submitted that even following 29 April 2014 negotiations have still been ongoing.

1 35. It was submitted on behalf of the Plaintiff that there are a series of decisions that 2 are amenable to judicial review. It is contended that these are: (i) the decision to 3 restructure the CIFS; (ii) the action of embarking on the process of retiring the 4 Plaintiff on the ground of seeking to improve the organisation; (iii) the decision to 5 conduct and the act of continuing to conduct the process exclusively by 6 correspondence; and (iv) the decision to bring to finality the process of 7 communication and consultation on proposed retirement without having satisfied 8 the statutory preconditions.

10 36. It is noted on behalf of the Plaintiff that where challenges are as to process, the 11 better option is to await a final or determinative stage before applying for judicial 12 review. It is contended that in this matter there is an ongoing process and that the 13 relevant decision is not one fixed in time. It is submitted that acting on the 14 commencement of the process, which it is appears is being submitted as being 15 around the time of the February 2014 letter, the continuation of that process as 16 well as the affirmation of its finality are each and all amenable to judicial review.
17 It is argued that the decision of 29 April 2014 is amenable to judicial review as it 18 is an “operative and significant” decision reached following a process which it is 19 contended has been in breach of statutory requirements.

21 37. The Court was referred to Judicial Remedies in Public Law by Clive Lewis 1992

application may be made to review an error in the decision-making process before that process is completed and a final decision reached. As the author rightly note the issue is whether the Court will refuse to grant leave because it requires the individual to wait until the final decision has been reached before mounting a challenge, relying on the error at the preliminary stage as a ground for validating the final decision. I am conscious that premature applications for judicial review should be the exception rather than the norm and that the parties should ordinarily await the final outcome. As the author rightly states at page 288:

“There are strong arguments against allowing premature challenges. The error might be corrected during the decision-making process, the error might not affect the final decision or the individual might not be dissatisfied with the final decision. It could be a waste of judicial time to review preliminary decisions rather than awaiting the final decision.”

This consideration becomes even more important and relevant when the parties are conducting the type of ongoing negotiations seen in this case.

Conclusion

38. I am not satisfied that there is a decision amenable for judicial review in this matter. As made clear by the Plaintiff in its 10 June 2014 correspondence with the Commission, the 25 February 2015 letter from the First Defendant was “ambiguous.” The Plaintiff in that letter also made it clear that the February letter was the Chief Officer providing the Plaintiff with written notice of his intention to retire him and was not written notice of a decision. It is clear that the Plaintiff was telling the Commission that the spirit behind the letter was one of negotiation, inviting a response, prior to making a decision about whether the staff member should retire. The tenor of the correspondence is that at the February letter did not include a decision and was following the appropriate process. It is clear that in the ultimate paragraph of the letter of 25 February 2014 that the First Defendant was affording the Plaintiff the opportunity to respond and explain his position about the First Defendant's intention to require him to retire. It is evident from the correspondence that follows, especially his without prejudice letter of 9 March 2014 that the Plaintiff took that opportunity. So no decision was made at that stage, but pursuant to the Regulations simply an intention expressed and an invitation to negotiate and respond made.

39. The 29 April 2014 letter importantly was written without prejudice and clearly formed part of the ongoing negotiations and was referring solely to the discussion about compensation. The Plaintiff places great reliance upon the words "final offer" contained in the letter; however the same wording was also used in the 20 March 2014 letter from the First Defendant, yet negotiations continued and that "final offer" was varied by the April letter. It is not unusual for parties when negotiating to give an impression that they are being firm and as a consequence comment that an offer is a final offer yet, as in this case, go on to later change the offer as the negotiations progress.

1 40. It is evident that the First Defendant is contending that he had evaluated the effect 2 that retiring staff member would have on the performance of the civil service 3 entity, that he had advised the staff member orally and in writing of the intention 4 to require him to retire to improve the organisation, that he had provided an 5 opportunity for the staff member to explain his position, that he had re-evaluated 6 the effect of retiring the staff member in light of the explanation provided and had 7 notified the staff member of the results of the re-evaluation. This all appears in the 8 correspondence. However, what he had not done was to complete the process set 9 out at section 44(3). If he had notified the Plaintiff that it was no longer an 10 intention and his formal decision was that he was being retired to improve the 11 organisation under the terms of his employment agreement and provided the staff 12 member with notice, whether that be three months or more, then a decision would 13 have been made. The First Defendant was not given an opportunity to consider 14 whether this is what he wanted to do before the matter moved on to the significant 15 next and final stage, as the Plaintiff lodged his appeal dated 21 May 2014 with the 16 Commission on the same day that he notified the First Defendant that he did not 17 accept the 29 April Offer, namely on 22 May 2014. Importantly, in this matter, 18 the Plaintiff remains employed 7 ½ months after the date upon which the Plaintiff 19 contends the decision had been made to retire him and there still remains no 20 notice date for any retirement. This is a clear indication that a final decision had 21 not been reached and that the negotiations about the retirement and the settlement

1 proposals, which were intrinsically linked to any such decision, were still ongoing 2 when the Plaintiff lodged his appeal with the Commission.

4 41. The appeal to the Commission and the application for judicial review were both 5 premature. This is not one of those cases for reviewing the decision making 6 process before that process is completed and a final decision reached.
7 Accordingly I am not satisfied that there is a decision amenable to judicial review 8 and I do not grant leave to apply for judicial review.

10 Costs

11 42. My preliminary view is to make no order for costs, however if either party wishes 12 to make submissions, they should contact the Court within five working days of 13 receipt of the certified final judgment.
