JUDGMENT & RULING

1

2 Levers J,

3

4 This is an application by the Fifth and Sixth
5 Defendants pursuant to GCR Order 12, Rule 8 to set 6 aside an Order of the 12 May 2004 which granted the 7 Plaintiff leave to serve proceedings out of the 8 jurisdiction on two Defendants in this Cause.

9

10 The First, Second, Third and Fourth Defendants
11 (known as "the Fund") were duly served within this 12 jurisdiction on the 3 May 2004 at the offices of 13 their attorneys, Walkers with a sealed copy of the 14 Writ of Summons and Statement of Claim.

15

16 THE PARTIES

17

18 The First, Second and Third Defendants are Cayman
19 Islands Funds, the First Defendant being the Master

1 Fund and the Second and Third Defendants being 2 Feeder Funds. The First, Second and Third 3 Defendants were established in August 1998. The 4 Fourth Defendant is a Cayman Island exempted
5 limited partnership established in 2001 and also a 6 feeder fund of the First Defendant. The Feeder
7 Funds had two classes of Shares "Z" shares and "M"
8 shares. The Fifth Defendant ("ZAM") that is Zulauf
9 Asset Management is a Swiss Company and investment 10 manager and advisor to the fund pursuant to an 11 investment advisory and management agreement 12 entered into in October 1998 between the Fifth 13 Defendant and the First, Second and Third
14 Defendants. The Sixth Defendant called 15 "Hemisphere" is an Irish company and administrator
16 of the fund pursuant to an administration agreement
17 entered into between the First, Second and Third 18 Defendants and the Sixth Defendant in August 1998.
19 Hemisphere performed the usual administration and 20 related services to the Fund but was subject to the

1 control and review by the Directors of the First 2 Defendant.

3

4 The Plaintiff Magnum is a Bahamian company. Magnum
5 entered into a fee sharing agreement with the funds
6 and the Fifth Defendant that stipulated the fees 7 payable to the Plaintiff in respect of M shares in 8 the feeder fund. If Magnum introduced investors to 9 the fund then the fee sharing agreement provided
10 that M shares would be issued to those investors 11 and fees would be payable to the Plaintiff. Under 12 the fees sharing agreement, the parties mandated 13 Hemisphere to attribute the appropriate fees to the 14 Fifth Defendant and the Plaintiff.

16 WIDER ORAL AGREEMENT

17

18 In addition to the 3 agreements mentioned above, 19 the Plaintiff contends that there was a wider oral 20 agreement known as "the 1998 Agreement". The Fifth

1 and Sixth Defendants deny that they were party to 2 this agreement or in fact had knowledge of it. The 3 Plaintiff contends that this agreement amongst 4 other things permitted the Plaintiff to have 5 reasonable opportunity to introduce investors by 6 marketing the fund. The First, Second and Third
7 Defendants summarily terminated the Plaintiff's 8 arrangement with the fund and treated the 9 Plaintiff, as if it had no marketing rights after 10 the 17 September 2002. The Plaintiff claims that 11 its efforts to introduce the investors were being 12 undermined from January 2002 onwards.

13

14 The issue is whether the Fifth and Sixth Defendants 15 can be liable for the failure of the Fund to make 16 payments that were due to the Plaintiff and if so 17 to what extent they are so responsible.

18

20

1 THE SIXTH DEFENDANT'S CASE

2

3 Mr. Farrow on behalf of the Sixth Defendant
4 contends that the Plaintiff is bound by the claims 5 it has made against Hemisphere in the Statement of 6 Claim.

7

8 THE CLAIMS MADE ARE:

9

- 10 1. An account of inquiry as to the identities of 11 investors and the amounts of investments
12 subscribed in the Zulauf Europe Funds as a 13 result of introductions made by the Plaintiff;
14
- 15 2. A declaration that the Plaintiff is entitled to 16 further payments in the future of its share of 17 fees in respect of introductions effected by 18 it.
19
- 20 3. Further or alternatively damages from the Fifth
21 and/or the Sixth Defendant and/or the Zulauf
22 Europe Funds resulting from the misallocation
23 of investors.
24
- 25 4. Damages from ZAM and/or Hemisphere and/or the 26 Zulauf Europe Funds for the loss of opportunity 27 of introducing investors to the feeder funds 28 and the LP feeder funds during 2002 up to the 29 closing to additional subscriptions in 2003.

1

2 Mr. Farrow, submits initially that the Hemisphere
3 Directors are not parties to the action and that 4 there are no contractual obligations between 5 Hemisphere and the Plaintiff. As a general
6 proposition he states that the Plaintiff has not 7 made out a good arguable case against his clients 8 since there is no contractual relationship between 9 the Plaintiff and his clients. He goes further to 10 state that his clients are not a proper party to 11 the proceedings since its joinder confers no real 12 advantage to the Plaintiff. He further contends 13 that the claims as pleaded against his clients in 14 the Statement of Claim disclose no serious issues 15 to be tried.

16

17 The Defendants' counsel have conveniently
18 classified the claims against them by the Plaintiff
19 as follows:

20

1 1. The Lost Opportunity Claim

2 That is, that the Plaintiff was wrongly
3 deprived of the opportunity of introducing 4 investors generally and because of the 5 premature closing of the Funds, thereby losing 6 the right to earn fees.

7
8 2. The Misapplication Claim

9 The Plaintiff's share of fees payable in 10 respect of investments introduced into M shares
11 after the 17 September 2002. The Plaintiff 12 claims that fees were wrongly diverted to the 13 Fifth Defendant who was paid in full.

14
15 3. The Misallocation Claim

16 The claim is that certain investors were 17 allocated Z shares when they should have been 18 allocated M share resulting in fees not being 19 paid to the Plaintiff. This claim is not being 20 pursued against the Sixth Defendant.

21
22 Hemisphere therefore has to respond only to the 23 misapplication and the misallocation claim. The 24 misapplication claim relates to the Plaintiff 25 share of fees under the Fee Sharing Agreement in 26 respect of the M shares that were allocated to 27 the investors introduced by the Plaintiff between 28 the 17 September 2002 and the 24 January 2003

1 when the fund was closed. The issue is whether,
2 in fact, the Plaintiff's services could have been 3 terminated summarily under the fee sharing 4 agreement. The Plaintiff contends that it could 5 not be so and that even if it was terminable it 6 could only be done on reasonable notice, which 7 was not given. The Plaintiff's claim against 8 Hemisphere is pleaded on a basis of a trust. Mr.
9 Farrow contends that as there was no contractual 10 obligation and as Hemisphere's role was purely 11 one of a signatory mandated to sign on the bank
12 account of the fund, it was a contractual 13 obligations and not a trust obligation and that 14 the Plaintiff's claim that this was trust 15 property is erroneous. The complaint that 16 Hemisphere did not pay the Plaintiff it's full 17 entitlement lies if it all in contract and not in 18 trust. He submits that the Plaintiff may have 19 contractual claims against the other defendants

1 but not against his client. He therefore says 2 that there is no serious question to be tried.

3

4 On the Misallocation Claim - this claim relates to 5 fees payable to the Plaintiff in respect of shares
6 issued to investors alleged to have been introduced 7 by it but not acknowledged as such by the 8 Defendants, that is, the issued Z shares which the 9 Plaintiff says, should have been M shares. The 10 Statement of Claim specifically claims that the 11 non-payment of these fees was in breach of the fee
12 sharing agreement. The Sixth Defendant was not a 13 party to the fee sharing agreement and therefore 14 could not act in breach of it says, Mr. Farrow.
15 Further, he submits that this cannot be the correct 16 position since the Plaintiff's entitlement under 17 the fee sharing agreement is exclusively in terms 18 of M shares and not investors introduced by the 19 Plaintiff. The misallocation claim is it is 20 submitted on behalf of Hemisphere embedded in the

1 1998 Agreement which agreement Hemisphere denies 2 any knowledge of or denies being a party to. The 3 Statement of Claim pleads extensively against the 4 fund by reference to the express terms of the 1998 5 Agreement and the particulars as pleaded of 6 negligence and bad faith relates to the 1998
7 agreement. However, although the particular claim
8 is exclusively against the Funds, the Particulars 9 of Negligence refer to Hemisphere in terms which 10 suggest that Hemisphere is also guilty of 11 negligence. Mr. Farrow submits that once this 12 Court holds there is no contractual relationship, 13 such a failure could only give rise to liability if 14 Hemisphere owed the Plaintiff a tortious duty of 15 care. No such duty is pleaded, he submits.
16 Further, he submits there is a claim for 17 procurement against Hemisphere and that the 18 Particulars of Procurement are wholly inadequate.
19 Relying on DC Thomson and Co. Ltd. v Deakin [1952]
20 Ch 646 and Merkus Island Corpn v Laughton [1983] 2

1 A.C. 570 at 607. He submits that the first 2 requirement is that the person charged, "knew of 3 the existence of the contract and intended to 4 procure its breach". He submits that the evidence
5 here does not support the Sixth Defendant being a 6 party to the agreement or having knowledge of it.
7 Finally, he submits that the Sixth Defendant is not 8 a proper party to the action for the following 9 reasons:

- 10 1. None of the claims pleaded against 11 Hemisphere can succeed without them also 12 succeeding against the Funds;
- 13 2. Given the likely quantum of these claims
14 and the respective net assets of the Funds 15 and of Hemisphere, the Funds will be able 16 to meet those claims without the Plaintiff 17 having to have recourse to the assets of 18 Hemisphere;
- 19 3. This is not a case where there is a 20 possibility of claiming, in respect of the 21 same cause of action, damages against the 22 Funds and an account of profits against 23 the Sixth Defendant or vice versa.

24

1 He submits that I should not exercise my 2 discretion, as this is not a proper case for 3 service out of the jurisdiction.

4

5 THE CLAIM AGAINST ZULAUF ASSET MANAGEMENT AG

6

7 The claims against ZAM are the same as the claim 8 against Hemisphere, save and except that in 9 addition, the Plaintiff claims against the Fifth
10 Defendant payment by the Defendant of all sum due 11 to the Plaintiff in respect of investors introduced 12 to the fund by the Plaintiff and/or an account from 13 the Defendant of all sums so due to the Plaintiff
14 but not paid to it. Ms. Pierce adopts Mr. Farrow's 15 submission on behalf of the Fifth Defendant where 16 relevant and also states that the Plaintiff must be 17 strictly held to the paragraphs of the GCR, order 18 11 under which it applied for leave to serve out of 19 the jurisdiction. She claims that the Fifth 20 Defendant is not a proper or necessary party to the

1 action and for the reason that the Plaintiff is 2 guilty of non-disclosure, she urges me not to 3 exercise my discretion in granting leave.

4

5 On the Lost Opportunity Claim - she submits that 6 the Plaintiff's contention that the Fifth Defendant 7 breached an agreement to cooperate and assist the 8 Plaintiff in marketing and introducing investors to 9 the fund thereby depriving it of the opportunity of 10 earning fees is not a proper claim. She contends
11 that there was no agreement between the Plaintiff
12 and the Fifth Defendant as regards to marketing.
13 That the first three defendants alone were 14 responsible for the decision to close the fund and 15 therefore the lost opportunity claim is 16 misconceived against the Fifth Defendant who was 17 purely the manager of the fund under the directions
18 of the Fund's Directors.

19

1 On the Misapplication Claim - she submits in the 2 same vein as Mr. Farrow and states that the 3 Plaintiff's pleaded case against her client is 4 unclear and contradictory. She states that the 5 Fifth Defendant did not and could not pay any fees
6 to the Plaintiff and that in fact the Plaintiff's 7 own case is that the Sixth Defendant was to give 8 effect to the agreement if any to pay fees.

9
10 On the Claim of Misallocation - she submits that 11 although the Plaintiff contends that her clients
12 wrongfully procured the misallocation of Z shares 13 to investors introduced by the Plaintiff who should 14 have been allocated M shares, the Court should be 15 alerted to the fact that the Plaintiff is only 16 entitled to payment in respect of investment in M
17 shares under the Fee Sharing Agreement. She quotes 18 from the affidavit of Mr. David Friedland to 19 support her assertion that the Plaintiff themselves 20 accepted this proposition. In fact, it is

1 acceptance by the Plaintiff's agent that she states 2 was not disclosed to the Court at the inception and 3 that therefore, the Plaintiff is guilty of non-4 disclosure. She submits that the Plaintiff must 5 satisfy the Court by its evidence that there is a 6 real issue which it may reasonably ask the Court to 7 try against her clients and no leave should be 8 granted if suing an alternative defendant is a 9 complete answer to the Plaintiff's claim. She 10 submits that there is no advantage to the Plaintiff
11 to join the Fifth Defendant and that the Fifth
12 Defendant is neither a proper nor a necessary party 13 to this action. The real claim she states lies
14 against the Fund not against the Fund's Investment
15 Manager, whose only role was to advise and manage 16 the Funds. That her client has no relationship as 17 such with the Plaintiff and it is only the Fee
18 Sharing Agreement that even connects them. Ms.
19 Pierce goes much further than Mr. Farrow. She says
20 that Cayman is not the proper venue for this case

1 to be tried. She states that the Plaintiff has 2 chosen this venue because another agreement between 3 the Plaintiff and the Defendants not related to the 4 Fee Sharing Agreement or to the 1998 Agreement
5 specifically states the Cayman Islands is the law 6 to govern that contract. She does not agree that 7 purely because a proceeding is on the way on the 8 same subject matter in the Cayman Islands, that 9 this makes Cayman the most appropriate venue. She 10 says that the onus is on the Plaintiff to show that 11 Cayman is clearly the most appropriate forum for 12 the trial of the action and that the Plaintiff has 13 not done so. In concluding she submits that I 14 should exercise my discretion and set aside the 15 order granting leave to serve outside of the 16 jurisdiction.

17

18

19

20

1 THE RELEVANT LEGAL PRINCIPLES ON APPLICATIONS TO 2 SERVE OUT OF THE JURISDICTION.
3

4 1. The applicant applying for leave must show that 5 the case falls clearly within one of the grounds
6 set out in GCR Order 11:

7 (a) He must choose which sub-
8 paragraph of Order 11, he 9 relies on and the sub-
10 paragraphs are, generally
11 speaking, to be read
12 disjunctively;

13 (b) The case must fall within 14 the spirit as well as the 15 letter of the Order;

16 (c) The court must decide upon 17 the application on the 18 basis of the cause or 19 causes of the action
20 expressly mentioned in the 21 writ or statement of claim.
22 The plaintiff will not be 23 allowed to rely on an 24 alternative cause of action
25 which he seeks to spell out 26 of the facts pleaded, if 27 such cause of action has 28 not been so mentioned.
29

30 The standard of proof required is a good arguable
31 case. This of course does not mean that the court

1 requires proof to its satisfaction but a strong 2 case for argument. Where questions of facts are 3 concerned, the court must look primarily at the 4 Plaintiff's case and not attempt to try disputes of 5 facts on affidavit. This grounds the jurisdiction 6 for the court to proceed further and look to see if 7 serious issues are to be tried.

8

9 Once the Court is satisfied that it has 10 jurisdiction, the court can then look at the 11 evidence and unless plainly wrong exercise its 12 discretion to grant leave on the merits. The 13 Plaintiff must satisfy the court that it is proper 14 to exercise its discretion to grant leave. The 15 matters to be taken into account are that it has a 16 good arguable case whether there is a serious issue 17 to be tried so as to enable it to exercise its 18 discretion to grant leave and whether it is the 19 proper forum in which the case should be tried. As 20 to the proper forum, the test is whether the

1 interest of justice is best served by proceedings 2 here or abroad. Generally speaking the power to 3 serve out of the jurisdiction is discretionary.
4 The general points to be applied are that the 5 discretion is to be exercised sparingly, the 6 Plaintiff must make full disclosure of relevant 7 facts and any doubt about the construction of the 8 relevant case in GCR Order 11 rule 1 is to resolved
9 in favour of the defendant.

10

11 The Plaintiff's Response To The Defendants
12 Application.

13

14 Mr. Lowe on behalf of the Plaintiff submits that 15 there is a serious question to be tried and that 16 the test is less than a good arguable case. He 17 submits that under the Statement of Claim there are 18 broad causes of action that are good and arguable.
19 On the question of the serious question to be 20 tried, he submits that one needs to look at the 21 legal structure that had been set up. He says

1 there was a holding company with two nominee
2 directors and that the investment manager (the 3 Fifth Defendant) controlled everything. In reality 4 he says, the investment manager dictated what was 5 to be done. Further, he says the termination of 6 the fund and the rights which the Plaintiff had in 7 the event of termination and whether or not it was 8 the Fifth Defendant's decision to close the fund is 9 an issue that should be tried. Ms. Pierce
10 submitted that in fact it was the Fund's decision
11 to close the Fund and therefore there is no case 12 against her client, but Mr. Lowe points to an 13 affidavit in which it is stated that it was on 14 Fifth Defendant's advice that the fund was closed.
15 On the question of notice, he submits that onus is 16 on the Defendant to prove the right of termination.
17 He relies on Spenbourough Corpn v Cooke Sons & Co.
18 Ltd. 1 Ch at page 139 (1968), on the question of 19 whether an agreement making no express provisions 20 for termination on notice was terminable. The

1 authorities support his contention that it is for 2 the defendants to prove the right of termination.

3

4 On the question of non-disclosure he submits, that 5 if the letter which was annexed to the affidavit is 6 read in its entirety it does not support the 7 contention that the Plaintiff accepted the position
8 as put forward by Ms. Pierce that it was not 9 entitled to the fees. Further, he says relying on 10 Electric Furnace Co. v Selas Corporation of America
11 [1987] RPC 23 that the Plaintiff's evidence had not 12 been misleading and had not failed to disclose 13 material facts. It was unreasonable to expect the 14 Plaintiff preparing his evidence in support of any 15 application under Order 11, rule 1, to anticipate 16 all the arguments which might be raised against his 17 case.

18

19 On the question of Obstruction the Plaintiff has 20 conceded that its claims is only against the Fifth

1 Defendant. The Fifth Defendant's only answer to 2 this is that there was no agreement to market. It 3 is Mr. Lowe says a matter for the judge at trial to 4 adjudicate on the 1998 Agreement.

5

6 On the misallocation and the misapplication of 7 funds, he responds to ZAM's allegation that both 8 the termination and the marketing fees were not 9 specifically stated in the fee agreement, by 10 stating that both claims are about payment of fees.
11 Schedule 1 annexed to the Statement of Claim 12 attempts to quantify the amounts at issue and he 13 says, that the entitlement gives rise to a 14 contractual right under the IAMA Agreement. His 15 submission is that if the Fifth Defendant took part 16 of the fees then the Fifth Defendant took the 17 entitlement to the Plaintiff knowing full well that 18 the Plaintiff was entitled to it. The entitlement
19 he submits is proprietary because the Fifth
20 Defendant's fees were assigned to the Plaintiff

1 under the fee agreement. He also submits that the 2 Sixth Defendant accepted the mandate to pay and as 3 the Sixth Defendant does the actual transaction, 4 the Sixth Defendant is liable as it was dealing 5 with trust property. It is his contention that 6 even if there is no proprietary claim he has a 7 claim for breach of contract in relation to the 8 implied terms. It is perhaps convenient at this 9 stage to look at the Fee Sharing Agreement and the 10 words specified therein which are of some 11 importance:

12

13 "In consideration of Magnum
14 serving as sponsor of the Feeder
15 Funds concerning the class M
16 shares the parties of this 17 contract herewith agree and 18 mandate the Administrator to 19 directly attribute out of the 20 investment advisory fee as per the 21 Investment Advisory Agreement
22 between ZAM and Zulauf Europe
23 directly the following portions of 24 the fee to Magnum and pay them out
25 to Magnum pari passu with payments
26 to ZAM on the advisory fee."

27

1 He submits that this is similar to an assignment.
2 The effect of it is that it at the point when the 3 money becomes due, it is the Plaintiff's and the 4 Plaintiff is entitled to those sums. "The chose in 5 action", he says, is the Plaintiff's. Simply put 6 Mr. Lowe's submission is that the fund is not 7 entitled to pay all the money to the Fifth
8 Defendant, once the Fifth Defendant under the fee
9 sharing agreement had assigned it to the Plaintiff.
10 It is not open to the other Defendants to pay the 11 Fifth Defendant. That the Sixth Defendant was 12 dealing with the funds and was mandated to deal
13 with them and knew of the Fee Sharing Agreement.
14 Once the money became due it was the Plaintiffs.
15 He relies on the case of William Brandt's Sons & 16 Co. v Dunlop Rubber Co. Ltd. [1905] AC, HL in which 17 it was held:

18

19 "That there was evidence of an 20 equitable assignment of the debt 21 to the bank with notice to the 22 purchasers, and that the bank

1 could recover the debt from the 2 purchasers.”
3

4 Goods having been sold by the merchants the bank 5 forwarded to the purchasers notice in writing that 6 the merchants had made over to the bank the right 7 to receive the purchase-money and requested the 8 purchasers to sign an undertaking to remit the 9 purchase-money to the bank. He further, relies on 10 the case Brice v Bannister [1878] C.A. to support 11 his submission that future money that will become 12 due are assignable.

13
14 In the alternative, he submits that if it is not a 15 contractual relationship with the Fifth Defendant 16 it is a proprietary relationship, that the money to 17 be received became the Plaintiff's money and that 18 the Fifth Defendant had control and was mandated to 19 have control over this money and pay out in a 20 proper fashion. He submits that the Fifth 21 Defendant accepted these instructions and should

1 have acted upon it. He says that the defendant did 2 not need to own the fund, what is necessary he 3 submits is a right of disposal. He submits that 4 the Plaintiff has both contractual and/or 5 proprietary rights over this money and that in both 6 cases the interest results in a promise to be paid 7 in the future. He submits that the promise has to 8 relate to identifiable property not necessarily 9 existing property. He therefore urges the Court to 10 hold that there are serious questions to be tried 11 and that this court has jurisdiction over those 12 issues.

13

RULING

14

15 This is a matter of construction of agreements. A 16 Fee Sharing Agreement, and a 1998 Oral Agreement 17 which went beyond the fee sharing agreement, an 18 investment advisory and management agreement and 19 the administrative agreement between the First,
20 Second and Third Defendants and the Fifth

1 Defendant. The issues in this matter are fairly 2 simple. The Plaintiff claims money that it submits 3 should have been paid to him by the fund and were 4 not paid to him for investors that he introduced 5 but were not acknowledged as introduced by him.
6 The misapplication of funds have been quantified in 7 the claim. The misallocation of funds (those 8 shares that should have been issued in a specific 9 manner as they were introduced by the Plaintiff and 10 were not issued in that manner) are yet to be 11 quantified but the claim remains. The Defendants 12 rely on lack of knowledge of a 1998 Agreement which 13 goes beyond the fee sharing agreement to which the 14 Fifth Defendant and the Plaintiff were parties with 15 the other Defendants. The law is that the 16 Plaintiff is bound by the claims made in the 17 Statement of Claim and cannot go beyond that. I 18 find that the Plaintiff has pleaded the broad 19 causes of action and they fall squarely under the 20 Grand Court Rules and that the persons whom the

1 claims are brought against are persons out of the 2 jurisdiction who are a necessary or proper parties 3 to the action. I agree with counsel for the 4 Plaintiff that the causes are based on contract and 5 on breach of trust against the Defendants. The 6 question I must now turn to is whether there is a 7 serious question to be tried. As a result of the 8 sudden closure of the fund, the Plaintiff lost the 9 opportunity of effecting introductions and earning 10 the resulting share of fees. The Plaintiff claims 11 that this amounted to a breach of expressly agreed 12 marketing rights as set out in paragraphs 11 (2) of 13 the Statement of Claim and the implied rights as 14 set out in paragraphs 12 (2) of the Statement of 15 Claim. The Fifth Defendants response is a pure 16 denial and I hold that this is a serious issue for 17 trial. The other serious question to be tried is a 18 breach of trust claim against the Sixth Defendant.
19 In view of the Fifth Defendant's assignment of the 20 money to the Plaintiff and the knowledge that the

1 Sixth Defendant had of this assignment was there a 2 breach when the Sixth Defendant who was mandated to 3 distribute the funds in accordance with the fee
4 sharing agreement paid everything over to the Fifth 5 Defendant. This is a question that can only be 6 resolved at trial.

7

8 The Plaintiff pleads its case against the Fund and 9 the Fifth Defendant by reference to the wider 10 agreement. The express and implied terms of the 11 agreement are set out in paragraphs 11 and 12 of 12 the Statement of Claim. The agreement must at 13 trial be interpreted in the context of the evidence 14 led by the Plaintiff. Finally, I need to address 15 the question of forum conveniens and non-disclosure 16 which was a fundamental plank of Ms. Pierce's 17 submission. She submitted that the Cayman Islands 18 is not the proper forum and that as there was such 19 fundamental non disclosure at the time of the ex-20 parte application that I should not exercise my

1 discretion in granting leave to the Plaintiff. I
2 rule that there was no material, non-disclosure.

3

4 The words relied upon by Ms. Pierce in the letter
5 do not advance the Defendant's case and or show 6 that there is an acceptance by the Plaintiff's of 7 the Defendant's position. The entire letter and 8 the context in which it is written does not advance
9 the Defendant's case any further. There is no 10 governing clause as to the law to be applied in the 11 fee sharing agreement and therefore this Court must 12 look at the following factors and exercise its 13 discretion as to whether Cayman is the proper 14 forum. The positive factors are:

15 1. The Funds are incorporated and registered in 16 the Cayman Islands.

17 2. The other Defendant's have instructed Walkers
18 to accept service of the proceedings. There
19 will therefore be a trial in the Cayman Islands 20 in any event.

1 3. The Sixth Defendant has an office in the Cayman
2 Islands namely BISYS Cayman Limited and the 3 Fifth Defendant chose to incorporate the funds
4 in Cayman.

5
6 I find that this is the most suitable forum in 7 which the dispute between all the parties could 8 be resolved and that the dispute has a sufficient 9 nexus to the Cayman Islands. For these reasons I 10 hold that the Defendants' applications be 11 dismissed and that the matter proceed with the 12 Plaintiff having leave to serve the Fifth and 13 Sixth Defendants out of the jurisdiction. Costs 14 to the Plaintiff, to be agreed or taxed.
